Response to Arguments

1. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., "a very short range receiver") are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

In this case, the Applicant attempts to overcome the Hiett reference by suggesting that "... Hiett is not disclosed as being a very short range receiver... The communication types, including infrared signals, may potentially be received from a significant distance, more particularly from greater than a few meters..." (page 7 of Applicant's arguments).

However, since the claims merely specify "...a very low range receiver..." and does not specify how close the receiver must be from the transmitter. The term "low range" is interpreted by the Examiner as being a relative short range communication system. And since Hiett's invention is for a communication system including a short range system such as infrared signals, a reasonable interpretation of the claimed limitation "a very short range receiver" would appear to be met by Hiett's communication system.

Therefore, the Examiner is not persuaded by the Applicant's arguments suggesting that the Hiett reference is not an analogous art and cannot be properly combined with the other references made of record by the Examiner.
